Section 1: The Geography of Nigeria

- What terms do I need to know?
  - delta
  - navigable
  - tropical savanna climate
  - harmattan
  - diverse
  - Boko Haram

Location and Size of Nigeria

- Nigeria is in the eastern and northern hemispheres and is located on Africa's west coast.
- Nigeria is bordered by Niger, Benin, Cameroon, Chad, and the Gulf of Guinea.
- Nigeria's land area is about 356,000 miles, which is roughly six times the size of Georgia.

Physical Geography of Nigeria

- The Niger River is the source of the country's name and is the largest river in West Africa.
  - The river begins in Guinea and flows through Guinea, Mali, Niger, Benin, and Nigeria to the Gulf of Guinea.
- The river flows through rain forests and swamps and has a delta, which is where a river divides into smaller bodies of water as it meets with a larger body of water.
- Most of the river is navigable, or ships can operate on it, which is great for trade and shipping.
- While the coastline is rich in oil, government corruption and other problems have prevented the country from enjoying these benefits.
- The country has low plains in the south with some dense forests, highlands and extinct volcanoes in the central part of the country, and the north has rolling plains with plateaus.

Climate of Nigeria

- Nigeria is just north of the Equator, meaning temperatures are high, with the most common climate being the tropical savanna climate.
  - That means monthly average temperatures are above 64° F year round.
  - A dry winter season is followed by a rainy season in May.
- Along the coast is hot and wet most of the year, with tropical rain forests in this area.
- The climate is hotter and drier in the north, with few plants being able to grow.
  - During the winter, a dry wind called the harmattan blows from the northeast, carrying dust from the Sahara across the region.

Natural Resources of Nigeria

- Nigeria has large deposits of petroleum and natural gas along with other natural resources.
  - Unfortunately, the money from selling the oil has not benefitted many, due to mismanagement and corruption.
- Nigeria has other natural resources that the government has not invested in because of its investment in the oil trade.
- Even though Nigeria has a large amount of arable land, it still has to import much of its food to meet the needs of the people.
- Nigeria also has talc, gypsum, iron ore, lead, zinc, gold, coal, gemstones, rock salt, and kaolin.

10

Where People Live in Nigeria

- About half the people in the country still live in rural areas, practicing traditional ways.
- The coast is heavily populated because it is easier to trade and is the center of the oil industry.
- Areas along the Niger River and its delta are also heavily populated.
- Cities like Lagos and Abuja are both large urban centers.

11

Environmental Issues in Nigeria

- Deforestation is a problem, causing soil erosion as well as destroying habitats for plants and animals and disrupting the water cycle.
- Urbanization brings with it pollution problems.
  - Nigeria deals with oil spills frequently, which can contaminate the water, air, and land.
- The government needs to balance earning money from oil with protecting the environment.

12

People of Israel

- Nigeria is a very diverse, or varied, country, with the Hausa, Igbo, and Yoruba ethnic groups making up a 5th of the population.
- Nigeria is also divided by religion, with 50% being Muslim, 40% being Christian, and the remaining 10% practicing indigenous beliefs.
  - Religious tensions are a constant problem, with the militant Muslim group Boko Haram trying to take over parts of the country.
- Generally, religion is taken very seriously, and most people will make frequent references to their faith.

Section 2: A Brief History of Nigeria

- Essential Question:
  - What was the immediate aftermath of independence in Nigeria?

14

Section 2: A Brief History of Nigeria

- What terms do I need to know?
  - merchant
  - missionary
  - Pan-African Movement
  - Independent State of Biafra
  - civil war
  - civilian rule

15

Early History

- Throughout its history, Nigeria has had many different ruling systems and has come in frequent contact with foreign traders.
- The first group of traders that came to Nigeria were merchants, or people involved in trade, from North Africa and the Arabian Peninsula.
  - These traders brought gold, ivory, iron, slaves, and gum, as well as the Quran and Islam.
- Two of the four trans-Saharan trade routes went through Nigeria, which made it a crossroads of people, goods, and ideas from around the continent.
- European traders arrived in the 15th century, looking for gold and slave labor.
  - For over 300 years, the human slave trade was conducted along Africa's shores, with the center of the trade in Nigeria.

16

British Colonial History

- The British stayed in Nigeria even after they abolished slavery in 1807.
  - They were interested in Nigeria's cocoa, groundnuts, rubber, and palm oil, so they made permanent settlements there.
  - The British used the Niger River to move inland.
- Along with their takeover, they brought missionaries to promote Christianity in the country.
- British influence and control over Nigeria grew over the 19th century.

17

Pan-African Movement

- This movement began as a reaction to colonial rule in Africa.
- The goal of the Pan-African Movement was for all people of African descent to work together to improve Africa and to think of Africa as a homeland.
- Another goal was to end European colonial rule, and as it spread through Nigeria and the rest of Africa, many Nigerians began pushing for independence.

Independence

- After World War II, Nigeria was granted more and more freedoms through a series of constitutions, finally gaining independence in 1960.
- However, war broke out between the Muslim north and Christian south, leaving thousands dead or injured.
- When the country tried to reorganize itself into twelve regions, the Igbo people in the east declared themselves to be the Independent State of Biafra, resulting in a 30-month civil war (war between citizens of the same country).
  - By the end, Biafra was again part of Nigeria, but military coups and violence occurred in the years following.
- In 1999, a new constitution was adopted, and a civilian government was established.
  - Nigeria is currently experiencing its longest period of civilian rule (which means that the leaders have not been part of the military), despite some minor violence around elections.

Wole Soyinka

- Akinwande Oluwole “Wole” Soyinka is one of the best-known political activists and writers in Nigeria.
- Born in Nigeria and attending the University of Leeds in England, he returned to Nigeria and produced his first play.
- He was very outspoken for his support of democratic rule in Nigeria, with many of his works focusing on his dislike and distrust of the rulers in Africa.
- After his arrest for speaking out against the civil war, he wrote poetry during his prison time.
- Soyinka was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986 for his literature, and in 1996, he was named the Robert W. Woodruff Professor of Arts at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia.
- Today, he is still a political activist for democracy in Nigeria.

Section 3: Government of Nigeria

- Essential Question:
  - How do citizens participate in the government?

21

Section 3: Government of Nigeria

- What terms do I need to know?
  - republic
  - federal government
  - presidential democracy
  - Federal Executive Council
  - National Assembly
  - Supreme Court

---

---

---

---

---

---

22

Type of Government

- The country is a republic, which means it has elected representatives.
- Nigeria also has a federal government, which means power within the government is divided among the national, state, and local governments.
- The constitution, written in 1999, established a civilian government and has been amended several time.

---

---

---

---

23

Branches of Government

- The head of government and cabinet make up the executive branch.
  - Nigeria has an elected president, making it a presidential democracy.
  - The president serves as both the head of government and state.
  - The cabinet, called the Federal Executive Council, is appointed by the president.
- The legislative branch, called the National Assembly, is made up of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives, and makes the laws for the country.
- The judicial branch has a Supreme Court, with a chief justice and 15 justices, who are appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate.
  - Sharia Law is used in some states in northern Nigeria, but not the rest of the country.
  - Nigerian laws are based on British law traditions.

---

---

---

---

24

Challenges Facing the Government

- Government corruption and terrorism are common problems in the country.
- The country also has had a long period of military dictators as rulers, so they are getting used to elected leaders.
- The government is working to strengthen its democracy and diversify its economy.
- The Nigerian government forces have a lack of understanding on how to respond to peaceful protests, killing close to 500 people in 2015.

25

Section 4: Economy of Nigeria

- Essential question:
  - What factors are driving Nigeria's economic growth?

26

Section 4: Economy of Nigeria

- What terms do I need to know?
  - Nollywood
  - diversified economy
  - infrastructure
  - naira

27

Type of Economy

- Nigeria has the largest economy in Africa, with a GDP of $1 trillion.
- Nigeria's economy is mixed, leaning toward a market economy.
- Because of their oil reserves, Nigeria is a member of OPEC, and their reserves have been a dominant source of income since the 1970s.
- Nigeria's economic growth has recently been driven by agriculture, telecommunications, and services, but it has not been enough to decline poverty levels.
- Nigeria's entertainment industry includes a growing film industry that has been nicknamed Nollywood.
- The most important challenge is developing a diversified economy, or one that is broadened to focus on other resources and industries instead of just one.
  - Nigeria is branching into telecommunications, financial services, and cement.
- Nigeria is trying to improve its infrastructure, which includes roads, railways, and communication systems.
  - This would not only benefit Nigerians, but also businesses trading goods.

28

Nollywood

- The Nigerian film industry is the second-largest movie producer in the world behind India's Bollywood, producing an average of 1,000 films a year.
- While the industry is valued at $3 billion, the actual movie industry sees very little of that money as most of it goes to video pirates.
- Nollywood began in 1992, with minimal resources, self-taught directors, and a lot of ideas.
- Today, Nollywood is growing at a fast pace, and it is the country's largest employer after agriculture.

29

Trade in Nigeria

- Trade is very important to Nigeria.
- The country's major exports are petroleum and petroleum products, cocoa, and rubber, while its imports were machinery, chemicals, transport equipment, manufactured goods, food, and live animals.
- The currency of Nigeria is the naira, which one US dollar can be exchanged for about 315 naira.
- In 2013, Georgia's exports to Nigeria totaled about $248 million, and its imports totaled more than $25 million.

30

Natural Resources in Nigeria

- Nigeria has a wide variety of natural resources.
- It has roughly 23 billion barrels of petroleum and 160 trillion cubic meters of natural gas.
- It also has talc, gypsum, iron ore, lead, zinc, gold, coal, rock salt, gemstones, and kaolin.
  - However, the government does not focus too much on these resources.

31

Human Capital in Nigeria

- Nigeria should have a strong economy thanks to its rich oil deposits, but years of corruption, civil war, and military rule have left it poor.
- Investment in human capital is a way to make the economy grow.
- The literacy rate is currently about 60%, with 70% for men and 50% for women.
  - This is because 30% of children have to help their families work and cannot attend school.

32

Capital Goods in Nigeria

- Nigeria has heavily invested in capital goods for the oil industry.
- However, focus on this part of the economy has left many Nigerians without proper food or housing.
- Nigeria does not have a large manufacturing sector, having to import most of their non-oil related capital goods.

33

Entrepreneurship in Nigeria

- Currently, it is not easy to be an entrepreneur in Nigeria.
- Nigeria’s government is working to help small businesses thrive.
- It costs about four times the average annual income to get a business license.

34

Section 5: U.S.-Nigeria Relations

- Essential question:
  - What are some reasons the relationship between the two countries was strained?

35

Section 5: U.S.-Nigeria Relations

- What terms do I need to know?
  - diplomatic relations
  - military coup
  - transparency
  - African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA)

US-Nigeria Relations

- The US established diplomatic relations, or an arrangement where two nations have representatives in each other's country, with Nigeria in 1960, following its independence from the United Kingdom.
- From 1966-1999, Nigeria experienced many civil wars and military coups (an overthrow of the government by military forces).
- Following the adoption of the new constitution in 1999, relations improved, along with cooperation on foreign policy goals like peacekeeping.
- The two countries hold talks on key areas: good governance, transparency (obligation to share information with citizens), and integrity, energy and investment, regional security, and agriculture and food security.

37

US Assistance to Nigeria

- The US wants to help improve economic stability, security, and well-being for Nigerians by strengthening their democracy.
- Nigeria is combatting corruption in their government, and improving transparency will help citizens trust the government again.
- The US also wants to help with health, education, and agricultural production.

38

Bilateral Economic Relations

- The US is Nigeria's largest foreign investor in Nigeria, with most investments concentrated on petroleum, mining, and the trade sector.
- Nigeria is eligible for preferential trade benefits under the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA), which increases the market access to the US for qualifying countries in sub-Saharan Africa.
- The US and Nigeria have signed a bilateral trade and investment framework agreement.

39

Nigeria's Membership in International Organizations

- Nigeria and the US belong to many of the same organizations, including the United Nations, International Monetary Fund, World Bank, and World Trade Organization.
- Nigeria is also an observer to the Organization of American States.
- Nigeria is a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), who's goal is to control the price of oil in the world by controlling the supply.
